Delta variant spreads in the county

By Jennifer Dunlay

The Delta coronavirus variant is throwing a wrench in plans to ditch the masks and return to pre-pandemic life.

Between July 1 and Aug. 6, positive cases of COVID-19 increased by nearly 800% in Johnson County due to the spread of the Delta variant. This jump in cases caused Johnson County health officials to strongly recommend masking in indoor public areas in early August.

To keep schools open in a safe manner, a mask mandate order was enacted by the Johnson County Board of County Commissioners. The mask mandate is in effect until May 31, 2022, unless amended or revoked. Although the threat exists for children to become very sick with COVID-19, adults who are unvaccinated or immunocompromised are at highest risk for a severe health outcome from this virus variant.

Even with these additional protection measures in place, Dr. Sanmi Areola, director of the Johnson County Department of Health and Environment, says the best way to protect yourself and those you care about from COVID-19 is to get vaccinated.

“We have three highly effective and safe COVID-19 vaccines that will prevent you from becoming seriously ill and ending up in the hospital or even dying. Everyone over age 12 should get vaccinated so we can protect those who cannot – children under age 12 and those who are unable to get vaccinated for medical or religious reasons,” he said.

Although a small number of breakthrough cases have been reported to the health department, 0.4% of those vaccinated with the Johnson & Johnson vaccine and 0.1% of those vaccinated with Moderna or Pfizer vaccines, nearly all of the recent infections, hospitalizations and deaths come from those unvaccinated.

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) a very small percentage of fully vaccinated people can become infected with COVID-19 and spread it to others which is why health officials are now asking everyone to wear a mask in public indoor places whether they are vaccinated or not. Those who do experience a breakthrough case tend to have no symptoms or mild symptoms and rarely require hospitalization.

Areola says it’s especially important that transplant patients, those with chronic illnesses like heart disease or diabetes, or anyone undergoing treatment for cancer or taking immnosuppressants should continue to take the same pandemic precautions they did before they were vaccinated – wearing a mask, avoiding crowded indoor places, keeping distance from those you don’t live with and frequent hand-washing.

He advises that gathering outdoors is a safer alternative and encourages everyone to wear a mask if you can’t keep distance from people you don’t live with whether you are vaccinated or not. When planning a visit to a long-term care facility, Areola says it’s a good idea to call ahead and ask about their visitation policy as it may have changed recently.

As flu season approaches, the health department continues to recommend everyone over the age of 6 months get a flu vaccine when it becomes available this fall. Those over age 65 can get a high-dose flu shot and a vaccine to prevent pneumonia.

Like the COVID-19 vaccine, the flu shot protects you from getting infected with influenza or reduce the severity of flu symptoms if you do become infected. The health department will be offering both the regular and high dose flu shots this fall at its Olathe walk-in immunization clinic.

Visit jocogov.org/coronavirus or call 913-715-2819 for more information about how to get a COVID-19 vaccination in Johnson County. You can also text your zip code to 438829, visit vaccines.gov or call 1-800-232-0233 (TTY 888-720-7489) to find a vaccine provider anywhere in the United States.

There will be vehicles aplenty on Oct. 9 at the Theatre in the Park, 7710 Renner Road, Shawnee.

From 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., Trucks and Big Rigs for Kids will allow youngesters and oldsters to explore trucks, tractors, construction and city vehicles up close. Participants can crawl, climb and sit in the driver’s seat and talk with the real life operators of these vehicles. The first 150 children will get a free construction worker hat!

Suggested donations of $10 per vehicle will be accepted.

The 11th Annual Cars in the Park car show will also take place on the same day from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. also at Theatre in the Park.

Admission is free for spectators. Event features food vendors, a 50/50 pot, silent auction of sports memorabilia and a DJ.

Car show participants can register at JCPRD.com/register. Each entry is $25 in advance and includes a free T-shirt, $25 day of the show.

For more information, visit JCPRD.com/carsinthepark.

Proceeds from both events go to benefit JCPRD Special Olympics programs so that athletes may afford to participate in many different activities.
Live Well Age Well goes virtual

By Michelle Alexander

Now in its 11th year with Johnson County Park and Recreation District’s 50 Plus Program, the 2021 virtual Live Well Age Well event will feature local experts who will engage with the audience on topics meant to provide tips, resources and take-aways that are available either online or right here in our community.

Virtual sessions will take place from 9 a.m. to noon on Tuesday, Sept. 14 and Wednesday, Sept. 15. The event is free to all registered attendees and will feature a variety of educational sessions, online resources, demonstrations and door prize opportunities through the online video conference platform Zoom.

An event bag with program details, resources and goodies will be available for pickup on Monday, Sept. 13, for every participant who registers by Wednesday, Sept. 8. Pick-up locations include:

- Meadowbrook Park Clubhouse, 9101 Nall Ave., Prairie Village
- Roeland Park Community Center, 4850 Rosewood Drive
- Tomahawk Ridge Community Center, 11902 Lowell Ave., Overland Park
- New Century Fieldhouse, 551 New Century Parkway, New Century (near Gardner)
- Antioch Park, 6501 Antioch Road, Merriam.

Specific pick-up details will be communicated via email to registered participants along with links to access the online event presentations.

The event will kick off on day one with Bryan Rife. He is a certified life coach and has traveled the country providing fun, energetic presentations and workshops to a variety of organizations. His presentation at Live Well Age Well will focus on the importance of being involved in community and keeping social connections. He will also lead a session titled, “I’ve Opened the Box, Now What?” that will review useful tech devices for older adults.

Additional sessions on herb gardening, exercise and aging, meditation and practical stretching are also planned. A panel of volunteer coordinators from Johnson County Government will share information on volunteer opportunities available within the county and how to get involved.

Another Johnson County panel will provide education on the many aging resources that are available. Additional presentations will be provided by local Master Gardeners, the Alzheimer’s Association, JCPRD 50 Plus instructors and other local speakers.

Visit the Live Well Age Well website at jcprd.com/livewellagewell to register online, view a detailed event schedule, speaker bios and links to resources for local services and businesses. To register by phone, call 913-831-3359.

Registration is required and limited to 250 attendees.

A comprehensive and fun approach to living that celebrates the gift of longevity is what participants will find in a program being offered beginning in September by the 50 Plus Department of Johnson County Park and Recreation District.

The Aging Mastery Program (AMP) focuses on positivity and simple changes that can make a big difference in creating healthy habits. The program combines goal setting, daily practices and peer support to help participants make meaningful changes in their lives. It covers a broad range of topics with local experts helping to teach the curriculum.

Sessions will include:
• “Navigating Longer Lives”
• “Exercise and You”
• “Sleep, Healthy eating”
• “Financial Fitness”
• “Advanced Planning”
• “Healthy Relationships”
• “Medication Management”
• “Falls Prevention”
• “Community Engagement”
Participants will receive educational materials and incentives throughout the 10-week program.

AMP is more than classroom learning, as organizers hope to build a community to help participants find others who are having similar experiences and connect participants to services and organizations with resources to keep people active, engaged and independent.

The program includes assistance from the Mid-America Regional Council’s KC Communities for All Ages and K-State Research and Extension of Johnson County.

The next AMP session will begin at 9:30 a.m. Thursday, Sept. 23, at Meadowbrook Park Clubhouse, 9101 Nall Ave., Prairie Village. The cost for 10 sessions of 90-minute each is $55 per person for Johnson County residents or $61 per person for nonresidents. Call 913-826-2975 for more information.

To register by phone, call 913-831-3359 or register online by visiting jcprd.com/agingmastery.

Two events set Oct. 30

October 30 can be a busy and fun day to enjoy two public events within miles of one another.

The Mildale Farm Fall Fest, 35250 W. 199th St., Edgerton, will take place from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. featuring a number of fall activities.

Visitors will be directed to park in the large parking lot near Mildale Farm’s main barn which features peg construction and a hand-laid brick floor.

While District fishing permits have been waived for the Fall Fest, anglers 16 and older will still need to have a valid Kansas fishing license.

More event details are available at jcprd.com/182/Mildale-Fall-Farm-Fest.

From 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., the Lanesfield School Historic Site Fall Open House at 18745 S. Dillie Rd., Edgerton, is celebrating the 200th anniversary of the Santa Fe Trail with old-fashioned fun. Hands-on activities include the Missouri Town Band, outdoor games and lessons in the schoolhouse with costumed teachers.

Both events are free.
A lot has changed in the nation in the 20 years since four hijacked planes crashed into the World Trade Center (WTC) Twin Towers, the Pentagon and a field in Pennsylvania. Nearly 3,000 lives were lost on Sept. 11, 2001.

The War on Terror began, leading to the longest sustained military campaign in U.S. history. The Department of Homeland Security was formed. Air travel was transformed with tighter airport security and screening. In December 2001, a joint resolution of Congress has designated Sept. 11 each year as Patriot Day. In 2009, Congress passed legislation requesting the observance of a “National Day of Service and Remembrance” on Patriot Day.

For most of us, the memories are still fresh as we commemorate the 20th anniversary of Sept. 11.

In the July-August issue of The Best Times, we asked you to share your reflections by email or mail. Snippets from some memories of respondents reflect the shock, fear, sorrow and anger that were shared by many that day. All submissions and memories in full are accessible at jocogov.org/Johnson-CountyRemembers.

A few respondents were eyewitnesses or had personal connections to where the attacks occurred.

Steve Ferrell, a retired Army brigadier general living in Overland Park, attended a Pentagon appointment “at the precise location of the crashing airliner.” Luckily, he had left the Pentagon to return to his office just five minutes before United Airlines Flight 77 slammed into the Pentagon. From his car, he saw the rising smoke from the attack.

Tom Heintzelman, Overland Park, saw United Airlines Flight 175 crash into the South Tower from his Washington, D.C. hotel room.

Dave Lewis-Jones, Lenexa, grew up near the WTC where his father worked in the North Tower. When the South Tower was struck, he “knew we were at war,” adding, “the attacks affected me profoundly. Still do.”

Martin Ritter, Overland Park, was at the Exchange Place rail station in Jersey City, N.J. when American Airlines Flight 11 plowed into the North Tower and later watched as both twin towers collapsed within 102 minutes. “I will never forget it.”

Originally from Pennsylvania, Chris Hickam, Shawnee, was working in Texas when the attacks occurred. United Airlines Flight 93 had crossed over his hometown of Shanksville and was deliberately crashed about “80 miles from my parents.”

Judith Oberbeck, Overland Park, was caught in the turmoil that followed the attacks when the entire airspaces of the United States and Canada were closed and Amtrak train service was halted for two days, leaving her and many other travelers temporarily stranded.

She was visiting her daughter and first-born grandson in Indianapolis “when this horror struck.” Oberbeck could not get back home to start a new job. She eventually found a rental car, driving it to St. Louis where her husband picked her up. “As a new employee, being a week late for the job, was totally understood. Everyone’s lives were changed on that day.”

Gary Bachman, Overland Park, was making the morning rounds as a medical social worker at the University of Kansas Medical Center, Kansas City, Kansas, when the planes struck the twin towers and he received two “911” (emergency) pages. For 35 years, he has been involved in disaster response work with fire and emergency services.

One page asked him to head to Kansas City International to help displaced air travelers whose trips were interrupted with many sleeping on cots.

The other page requested his availability for deployment to New York City. He deployed the third morning (Friday) on one of the first flights out of KCI. For the next two weeks, Bachman helped evacuees from the twin towers along with first responders, National Guard troops and construction crews working on and through “the pile,” saying it was “quite a memory.”

Like most of the nation, most respondents said they were right here in Johnson County or in metro Kansas City watching the news on TV screens.

Ken Hatfield, Stilwell, was attending a job-hunting seminar and joined a group watching live news coverage of the WTC after the first tower had been hit followed by a second airline striking the second tower. “Everyone was speechless … A dark day indeed.”

Joan Anderson, Roeland Park, was working at Kansas City’s Community Blood Center where a staff and donors watched TV in disbelief. “Within a few hours, there was a line of donors around the building; it was the only positive thing anyone could think of to do. Such a helpless feeling.”

Victoria Bruce, Olathe, was off from work and could not believe what she was seeing and hearing on TV. She called family members and friends, talked with neighbors, anyone who wanted to talk and “to God also.” She prayed “for families who lost family,” adding “we will never forget our heroes.”

Jamie Christie, Olathe, worked at Kansas City’s Marine Corps Finance Center and watched the TV coverage of the attacks. The Marines were accountants, but at “that moment they became warriors. They couldn't stand it and wanted to immediately pack up to defend our nation.”

Carol Yasuhara was teaching at Shawnee Mission North High School that morning. Now a retired world language instructor living in Overland Park, her memories was submitted as a small poem entitled “Where were You” with poetic blocks ending by asking: What’s happening in our county? History has recorded what happened that day of infamy in the first terrorist attacks on our homeland. Even after 20 years, memories of Sept. 11 never die. Remembering matters.
The new Aging Resources Guide at jocogov.org/aging-resources-guide features a menu of choices that’s content-rich and also graphically enhanced. The website provides a more visual and intuitive guide to aging services in Johnson County.

Here’s a quick look at the main features and some of the visual references seniors can expect to see when they visit, including:

- AAA Services: Includes care in the home, support for caregivers, food and nutrition programs, community-based service options, legal services, volunteering and highlights from the Johnson County Commission on Aging.
- Special Reports and Publications: Housing and long-term care, transportation, financial assistance, navigating health care and a link to The Best Times online.
- Explore Your Options Directory: An online guide full of resource and service listings in just about any category you might need … with special overviews and step-by-step guides to important subject areas.
- New Online Intake Form: Help is one call away Monday-Friday, 8 a.m.-5 p.m. but you can start your request online if you like. Information specialists will continue to offer that personal connection many people need at 913-715-8861.

Elaine Dale named Citizen of the Year

Elaine Dale with Gardner Senior Nutrition Center has been named the recipient of the 2021 Citizen of the Year Award from the Gardner Rotary Club.

“Elaine goes above and beyond to make sure all who enter the Gardner Nutrition Center feel welcome. She organizes the daily operations of the Gardner Nutrition Center and home-delivered meal distribution,” said Dyan Kallauner, AAA Nutrition Program coordinator.

“Thank you, Elaine, for your continued dedication to the JCAA nutritional program and the Gardner community!”

In addition to the award, Dale also was grand marshal at the recent Johnson County Fair Parade and was recognized as a Paul Harris Fellow by the Gardner Rotary Club.

The Citizen of the Year Award, co-sponsored by the club and the Gardner Chamber of Commerce, is presented to an individual who has made noteworthy contribution to the Gardner area during the previous year or over a number of years.

Recipients demonstrate commitment to community through their work and volunteer service, serve as a role model for others and maintain high ethical standards.

COA still seeks candidates for leadership award

The Johnson County Commission on Aging is still seeking candidates for the 2021 Peg Deaton Leadership in Aging Award.

The award honors individuals, groups or organizations making outstanding contributions to the quality of life for older adults and their families in Johnson County. To request a nomination form, call the Area Agency on Aging at 913-715-8860 or access the form online at jocogov.org/dept/human-services/area-agency-aging/commission-aging.

Nominations must be submitted by Sept. 30 to: Kim Mann, Commission on Aging, c/o Area Agency on Aging, 11811 S. Sunset Drive, Suite 1300, Olathe, KS 66061 or via e-mail to HSD-AAAWeb@jocogov.org.
Sign up remains for free Trualta support training for caregivers

The Johnson County Area Agency on Aging (JCAAA) continues to offer an innovative eLearning program for family caregivers of loved ones with dementia – part of a national program created by Trualta and offered by many aging offices across the country.

Designed to improve a caregiving situation, the free Trualta program features:

- Skill-based training through an online learning system with supportive print materials.
- A personalized learning journey based on relevant caregiving topics.
- Personal care tips for showering and toileting.
- Managing difficult situations like wandering, agitation and apathy.
- Safety and injury prevention, identifying fall risks, and moving and transferring safely.
- Caregiver wellness insights, including balancing work and caregiving.
- “Expert level” training from professional-level providers.

The caregiver support program provides a print and digital hybrid solution, so caregivers also receive printed booklets. JCAAA staff will introduce the platform to families during a phone call or home visit. They can direct caregivers to the modules that would be most helpful to them and follow up to assist or encourage engagement as needed.

For more information or to participate in the JCAAA-sponsored program, call 913-715-8861.

Thank-you cards showed clients’ appreciation for the care packages of groceries and cleaning supplies the Johnson County Area Agency Aging, in partnership with HyVee, delivered in June. Many shared they were: “overwhelmed, thankful;” “very nice gift ... wonderful products;” “Thanks for going to bat for us. The AAA is always looking out for the elderly.”

Upcoming COA meetings

The Johnson County Commission on Aging (COA) meetings are open to the public and take place at 9 a.m. on the second Wednesday of the month.

The next meetings will occur on Sept. 8 and Oct. 13 at 11811 S. Sunset Drive in Olathe.

More information about COA is available at 913-715-8860 or online at jocogov.org/coa or facebook.com/jocoaging/.
Razing of old courthouse paves way for new square

The new seven-story courthouse with 28 courtrooms, located at the corner of Kansas Avenue and Santa Fe Street in downtown Olathe, was completed in early January after more than two years of construction. Demolition of the old courthouse, located directly across the street to the south, began in April and was targeted for completion by the end of August.

Work to backfill the old courthouse foundation is expected to be completed by mid-September. Approximately 15,000 cubic yards of dirt removed for digging the foundation of the new courthouse was saved and stored at the New Century Air-Center.

Kyle Heltne, project manager at Johnson County Facilities Management, estimates the recycled dirt weighs approximately 33 million pounds (about 16,500 tons). It now will be used to fill the foundation hole from the old courthouse and creation of the new Johnson County Square.

In addition, much of the demolition debris from the old courthouse also is being diverted from landfills. And that’s a lot of material. According JE Dunn, leader of the design/build team for the project, including demolition, an estimated 5,500 tons (11 million pounds) of bricks, concrete, metals and other debris were amassed in the razing of the courthouse. Approximately 75% of the materials are being recycled in various ways.

“These are both earth-friendly and cost-saving green practices,” Heltne said.

The vacant plot of the old courthouse has also been redesigned with a green space concept, referenced as the intermediate option, for development of the Johnson County Square. The project has been authorized with funding approval by the Board of County Commissioners (BOCC) in its role as the Public Building Commission (PBC).

The plan was recommended to the BOCC by county staff and an 11-member steering committee with public input gathered from pop up meetings, open houses, a focus group and two online surveys.

The intermediate option creates the Johnson County Square. The project features a large open, public community green area with a curved and widened walkway from the corner of Santa Fe and Cherry streets as the main entry to the square. The walkway leads to Children of the Trails sculpture and fountain located north of the county’s Administration Building.

The project includes site lighting; landscaping with shrubs, perennials, ornamental grass and sod; installing an irrigation system; and adding a tree grove at the northeast corner. A crosswalk with pedestrian signals is located at Santa Fe Street and access to the new courthouse. The Johnson County Square encompasses the Children of the Trails sculpture and fountain, dedicated in 2000.

Funding for the new courthouse and the county’s new Medical Examiner Facility, which opened last year, is from a 10-year, quarter-cent public safety sales tax approved by Johnson County voters in 2016. The J.E. Dunn design-build contract includes demolition of the old courthouse and creation of the redesigned downtown square. The project is expected to be finished in early November.

A master plan option for future development of the Johnson County Square proposes the addition of a Memorial Plaza with educational and historical information near the fountain, an open multi-use platform with stage, an art garden play area and iconic public art near the main entry.

The PBC has not authorized or funded a future option for the project.
Create a pollinator habitat

By Dennis Patton

“Pitch in for Pollinators” or “Plant a Patch for Pollinators” are catchphrases creating awareness of pollinator protection. Whether you have a yard, live in an apartment, or in a maintenance-provided community, there is something we all can do to help our pollinators thrive.

Native bees, butterflies, moths, wasps, flies, birds, beetles and ants are all important pollinators supporting our food supply. However, honeybees managed in hives are a non-native European species. Although honeybees do pollinate many of our food crops, they are not the true workhorses. Instead, it’s the seldom-seen native insect responsible for pollinating most plants in the world.

About one in every three bites of food we eat have been pollinated by insects. Three-fourths of all plants on earth require pollination. If these vital pollinators are lost, the results will be a less diverse food palate and increased food prices. The value of insect pollination in the United States is $18 to $27 billion annually. The variety of fruits and vegetables coming from foreign countries allows consumers to purchase fresh produce year-round.

What can we do? Together we can pitch in and help support a more diverse habitat. The good news is many strategies do not require spending money or doing a lot of work. Some simple changes could save you time and money.

Think of insects as good not bad

We are conditioned early in life to believe insects are bad. They need to be controlled, squished or sprayed. Many people develop irrational fears of insects, running and screaming at the sight. Of the millions of insect species worldwide, about 1% to 3% is harmful to either crops or man. This means most cause no harm or are vital in supporting the food chain.

The chickadee, a bird-feeder favorite, requires more than 6,000 caterpillars to raise one clutch of young, according to University of Delaware Professor Doug Tallamy. By spraying every tree and shrub to rid an insect that might cause damage, we practically eliminate the next generation of birds to enjoy.

Let’s change our view. Consider insects for the value they bring, not the potential harm. So, think twice before reaching for the spray bottle. Better yet, be tolerant. Instead of thinking of a few chewed holes in a leaf as damage, think of it as food for hungry caterpillars – many of which gave their lives for our friendly birds.

Eliminate use of pesticides

Pesticides are one of the major threats to pollinators. Insecticides kill pollinators outright. Think you are doing good by using organic pesticides? Think again. Organics, just like synthetic chemical products, also kill beneficial insects. No product can selectivity target the bad guys. The good guys are also eliminated. Control insects if their damage threatens the plant’s life. Tolerate imperfections as life is not perfect.

Herbicides use is a mixed bag. Removing invasive plants is helpful as they outcompete the native plants. However, herbicides can also kill natives. Native plants are essential for nesting larval stages, providing nectar and pollen, and overwintering habitats.

One of the best early-season sources of pollen are dandelions and white clover. Ask yourself – does every weed really need to be killed? Practice tolerance.

If pesticides must be used, follow the label and use methods to minimize harming pollinators. Spray at night but never when plants are blooming or on windy days.

Plan to attract pollinators

Simple practices make a big difference. Diversity among plants in the garden is a must to support the wide range of pollinators. Native plants can co-exist with more formal plants to create an attractive yet sustainable garden.

Avoid a spic-and-span garden. An estimated 30% of native pollinators nest in pithy stems of plants. In the spring, leave winterkilled stems allowing for overwintering insects to slowly emerge. Don’t remove every dead twig at spring cleanup. Leave a third of the old stems to provide summer nesting materials. These stems disappear in the new growth only visible to nesting pollinators. Dead branches or logs decaying provide excellent habitat.

Approximately 70% of native pollinators are ground-nesting, burying into the soil to reproduce. Avoid the use of landscape fabric and heavy mulching, making it harder for ground dwellers to dig in. Holes bored into the soil should be thought of as good instead of something damaging. Don’t panic.

Pitching in requires us to adjust our preconceived notions about insects. Appreciate them for the good they provide. Focus on the positive, not the negative. We can make a difference and ensure a world supporting bustling insects. The bases of the food chain for all species depends on it.

20 years after 9/11: Parents recall loss of son in Pentagon

By Gerald Hay

Navy man Ronald John Hemenway was the third son of Robert (Bob) and Shirley Hemenway of Shawnee.

Twenty years ago, he was an electronics technician first class petty officer assigned to the Chief of Naval Operations at the Pentagon. He was at work on Sept. 11. It started as an ordinary Tuesday. He emailed his father a joke at 7:59 a.m. (EST) and spoke with Marinella, his wife, on the phone a few minutes after 9 a.m.

Then at 9:37 a.m., American Airlines Flight 77 hit the Pentagon, killing all 64 people on the plane and 125 people inside the Pentagon, including Ronald John Hemenway.

Twenty years later, the Shawnee couple sadly recall the events before and after Sept. 11, 2001, when their son was one of 2,977 victims killed in terrorist attacks involving four hijacked airplanes. Two planes struck New York City’s North Tower and South Tower of the World Trade Center. The third hijacked plane slammed into the Pentagon. The final plane was deliberately crashed into a Pennsylvania field near Shanksville.

The victims of the terrorist attacks ranged in age from 2 to 85. Ronald Hemenway, the father of two children, Stefan, 3, and Desiree, 1, was 37.

“The night before he died, we spent an hour and a half on the phone talking about equipment and so forth and I said, ‘Ron you better go to bed, you’ll never get up in the morning,’” his father remembered. “Twenty years may seem like a long time, but it seems just like yesterday.”

Shirley Hemenway, his wife of 61 years, agreed.

“We did not know where he was,” she added. “I thought I was going to die. We lost a piece of our heart that day.”

Like most of the nation, the couple watched in fear, awe and ire of 24/7 TV coverage about the attacks, heroic efforts of first responders, the collapse of the 100-story Twin Towers, a downed plane, a burning section of the Pentagon, wondering about their son.

They tried in vain to phone their son and called his wife, family members and area hospitals near the Pentagon for any information. Emails went unanswered.

“We did not know where he was,” Bob Hemenway said. “Since the Pentagon was so huge, the odds were he would not have been killed or harmed.”

Those odds were not to be.

Following Sept. 11, Ronald Hemenway was classified as MIA (Missing in Action) since his body had not been located by search and recovery teams. On Nov. 11, 2001, the Pentagon announced five victims either could not be positively identified or no remains were found in the rubble. Ronald Hemenway was reclassified as KIA (Killed in Action).

He rests in a single casket placed in a five-sided “Rock of Ages” granite monument at Arlington National Cemetery along with the other four unidentified victims. They included three civilians, ranging in age from 44 to 60, at work at the Pentagon and a 3-year-old girl on Flight 77. Other families also chose to include the remains of 25 other victims from the Pentagon attack in the casket. The group gravesite was dedicated on Sept. 12, 2002.

The Hemenways attended the dedication. It would be the second time they had buried a son. Their second child, Dale, died in infancy.

The couple has five children – two sons, Robert Hemenway Jr., Cleveland, Mo., and Paul Hemenway, Overland Park; three daughters, Sheri Berger, Shawnee, Debbie Gray, Overland Park, and Kathleen Novich, Olathe; 19 grandchildren; and 11 great-grandchildren.

Born in 1964 in Cordova, Alaska, Ronald Hemenway graduated from Wasilla High School, Wasilla, Alaska, in 1982 and attended the University of Alaska in Fairbanks for one year. For the next few years, he developed an interest in raising and breeding horses along with several other pursuits as a young adult.

“He definitely marched to the beat of a different drummer,” his father quipped.

After living in Alaska for more than two decades, Bob and Shirley Hemenway moved to the Lower 48 in the mid-1980s, first settling in Georgia before relocating to Kansas and making their home in Shawnee in July 1987.

In 1994, Ronald Hemenway joined the Navy shortly after his 30th birthday. In signing up, he expressed an interest in electronics in his military training, following in his father’s footsteps.

“I’ve been in electronics all my life,” Bob Hemenway said, adding with a smile: “The Navy wasn’t his first choice. He tried to go into the Air Force, but he was considered too old.”
Ronald Hemenway son attended the Electronic School in Great Lakes, Ill., and graduated as the Distinguished Military Graduate with his pick in assignments. He chose the U.S.S. LaSalle, a flagship in Gaeta, Italy. While serving in Italy, he met his wife, Marinella. They married in 1997.

Three years later, the Navy petty officer requested statewide duty to spend more time with his family and be closer to Kansas where his parents and most of siblings resided. He applied for a job opening at the Pentagon and was approved, transferring to Bolling Air Force Base near Washington, D.C., in March 2000.

He would die in military service while at his office job 18 months later.

Over the years, Ronald Hemenway is memorialized with the other victims inside the Pentagon or on Flight 77 in the National 9/11 Pentagon Memorial dedicated on Sept. 11, 2008.

He is also remembered on the 9/11 Memorial victim’s panel at the Overland Park Fire Training Center, 12401 Hemlock St. A bronze Battle Cross honors him near the main entrance to his high school in Wasilla, Alaska.

With the passing of 20 years, it’s easier for the couple to talk about that day and the beloved son they lost in the 9/11 attacks. They found solace and support through TAPS — Tragedy Assistance Program for Survivors — and became peer members.

“TAPS got us through those first years,” Bob Hemenway said.

A Gold Star Banner hangs from a front window. It symbolizes a family has had a loved one die or killed while serving in the armed forces. Shirley Hemenway joined the North East Chapter of Gold Star Mothers in Kansas, including serving as a past president.

“Before 9/11, I didn’t even know what a Gold Star Mother was,” she said. “It’s an honor no family wants.”

An entire generation has grown up since the attacks. Young children, including Ronald’s son and daughter, are now young adults in their 20s.

Bob Hemenway is 81. His wife is 79. Both have mobility challenges. Shirley Hemenway has Parkinson’s disease with speech difficulties and other complications.

Their home is filled with keepsakes of their son. Group family pictures of him and his siblings in youth don the wall above the fireplace along with a large portrait of their son in uniform. A triangular-folded flag sits on the mantel. His medals, including a Purple Heart, are displayed near the pictures.

Their lives were forever changed 20 years ago. Even with the passage of time, memories never die.

“9/11 was a sad tragedy for our family and our nation. So many loved ones were lost that day,” Bob Hemenway said.

Shirley Hemenway agreed.

“It never goes away,” she slowly added. “I want people to always remember. I don’t want them to ever forget.”

Event to observe 20th anniversary with 2,977 flags

A memorial display of 2,977 American flags will be dedicated on Thursday, Sept. 9, by Johnson County Government in observance of the 20th anniversary of the Sept. 11, 2001 attacks in honor of that many lives lost that day.

The “Johnson County Remembers” flag exhibit will be installed on the south lawn of the county’s Administration Building, 111 South Cherry St., in downtown Olathe. The 2-foot flags represent the victims of the 9/11 attacks on the twin towers at the World Trade Center (WTC), the Pentagon and the crash of a hijacked plane in a Pennsylvania field.

The public event will start at 8:03 a.m. when the United Airlines Flight 175, the second hijacked plane, hit the South Tower of the WTC almost 20 years ago. The tragic chain of events began at 7:46 a.m. when American Airlines Flight 11 struck the North Tower of the WTC and ended at 9:03 a.m. when United Airlines Flight 93 crashed near Shanksville, Pa.

Robert and Shirley Hemenway, Shawnee, and their family have been invited as special guests. Their son, Ronald Hemenway, Navy electronics technician first class petty officer, was killed in the Pentagon when American Airlines Flight 77 struck the building at 8:37 a.m. He was 37.

The program will feature speakers and participation by representatives from local first responders. The attacks killed 403 firefighters and law enforcement officers dying in the line of duty.

Ed Eilert, chairman of the Johnson County Board of County Commissioners, will emcee the program. The board will also issue a proclamation to commemorate the 20th anniversary of the attacks and the annual observance of Patriot Day, a Congressional designated National Day of Service and Remembrance on Saturday, Sept. 11.

The flags will be displayed in downtown Olathe through Monday, Sept. 13.

Watch for updates to the Johnson County Remembers event through social media and the county’s website at jocogov.org or jocogov.org/JohnsonCountyRemembers.
A picture is worth a thousand words and beauty is in the eye of the beholder. Those longing to create are invited to a series of one-day workshops, each with a different way of looking at or creating art hosted by Johnson County Park and Recreation District’s 50 Plus Program.

Workshop topics include an introduction to the elements such as color, form, line, shape, space, texture and value with each element being explored in a related art exercise or project. That workshop takes place on Sept. 20.

Participants can practice the blending of a variety of paper, images, words and mediums to create their masterpiece in the Collage Workshop on Sept. 27. In the Art as Play Workshop on Oct. 4, students will use mediums and techniques from childhood to “play” and learn to open-up to create art for the sheer joy of the experience.

To round out the topics, a Who Am I Workshop on Oct. 18 will invite participants to discover new ways to create a self-portrait, whether it be abstract, realistic or something out of this world!

All workshops, beginning at 9:30 a.m., will take place on Mondays at the Matt Ross Community Center, 8101 Marty St., Overland Park.

The cost for each 2½-hour workshops is $15 for Johnson County residents and $17 for nonresidents. For more information or to register by phone, call 913-831-3359 or online at jcprd.com/register.
50 Plus schedules Fund the Fun event

By Michelle Alexander

It started as a small group of 200 older adults that referred to themselves as the Olathe Satisfied Seniors and has developed into a well-known countywide outlet for older adults to stay connected and engaged in their community.

Thanks to those future-focused individuals in 1971, advocating the importance of providing recreation services to the more seasoned adults, grant monies were secured under Title III of the Older Americans Act to establish the Johnson County Park and Recreation District (JCPRD) Senior Adult Program. Once the grant funding was spent, the district assumed full financial support of the program in July of 1974.

In the beginning, weekly meetings of the organization consisted of entertainment, socialization, cards and games, which are still offered today. After a few location changes due to continued growth, the program became known as the Olathe Senior Center. As the first multi-purpose center in Johnson County, the center was designated a community focal point by the Johnson County Aging Department.

JCPRD and Johnson County Aging Services continue a strong partnership today with a purpose of serving older adults. Building and maintaining relationships with other local city government agencies and community organizations has also helped JCPRD’s 50 Plus Department grow and maintain its popular services.

Additional city agencies, such as Lenexa, Shawnee, Merriam, Gardner, De Soto and others, have welcomed 50 Plus activities to support older adult citizens within their cities. These spaces and connections allow JCPRD to provide more than 1,000 programs with the participation of approximately 20,000 older adults.

To help support our next 50 years, the 50 Plus Department is launching a fundraising event, Fund the Fun, on Thursday, Nov. 4. Funds raised through the Park and Recreation Foundation of Johnson County will be utilized for scholarships to cover participant program fees, expenses and administrative costs associated with providing additional low-fee and/or no fee programs and more.

Tickets for the fundraising event will be available to the public for purchase beginning Wednesday, Sept. 1, for $50 per person. Heavy appetizers, entertainment and lots of fun are included in the ticket price. Those registered will also have the option to purchase raffle tickets through the foundation for the chance to win prizes such as gift cards and gift baskets.

To learn more about how to support the 50 Plus Department through the 50 Years of 50 Plus Golden Anniversary Event and to Fund the Fun, visit jcprd.com/50plus or call 913-826-3160. Michelle Alexander is manager of the 50 Plus Department.
Knowing about dementia vs. mental health concerns

By Keith Davenport

Several recent studies have begun to demonstrate that there may be link between dementia and other mental health concerns, including an increased risk for suicide or self-harm.

Although this link doesn’t mean a person with dementia will always experience these mental health concerns, it does mean families should be aware of the mental health of their loved ones because families are the first line of care and support for an individual diagnosed with dementia.

September is Suicide Prevention Month.

One of the most evidenced-based ways that a family member can help prevent suicide in a loved one is to have direct conversations about mental health, including asking a loved one directly if they have considered suicide. If they answer “yes,” then you can listen to what they are feeling and connect them with professional help.

Johnson County Mental Health’s Center 24/7 Crisis Line is always available to talk about current crisis or just a general mental health concern you have for yourself or for someone you care about. You can also learn more about how to talk to your loved ones about their mental health by attending a class such as Mental Health First Aid, Applied Suicide Intervention Skills Training (ASIST) or Question, Persuade, Refer (QPR).

Visit jocogov.org/mentalhealth to view upcoming courses.

Keith Davenport is the community relations manager for Johnson County Mental Health Center.

Step into Wellness set Sept. 28

It's time to Step into Wellness by joining others from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Sept. 28 to exercise at Meadowbrook Park.

Sponsored by the Johnson County Park and Recreation District’s 50 Plus Department, participants will meet at the Meadowbrook Park Clubhouse, 9101 Nall Ave., Prairie Village.

Two different walking paths will be available to suit varying fitness levels.

The event, with breakfast, is $5 for Johnson County residents and $6 for nonresidents.

Registration is required and can be done by calling 913-831-3359 or online by visiting the Special Events page at JCPRD.com/50plus.

Were you reluctant to schedule an appointment with Kansas Legal Services (KLS) during the pandemic?
Fear no more! KLS never ceased doing its site visits in Johnson County for the Area Agency on Aging program (AAA). We still maintain safe protocols against COVID-19 and our attorneys are fully vaccinated.

Now, let me refresh your memory about Kansas Legal Services, Inc. (KLS) and what it can do for seniors.

KLS is a statewide, non-profit law firm. Through our AAA program, we are devoted to providing free legal services to Kansans who are 60 years of age and older and are U.S. citizens or legal permanent residents.

Our local office is located at 400 State Ave., Suite 1015, Kansas City, Kansas 66101 (913-621-0200). Our statewide headquarters are in Topeka. The KLS website at kansaslegalservices.org provides more information.

For convenience purposes for seniors, we make monthly, free “site visits” at the following Johnson County locations and schedules. Meetings, lasting 30 minutes each, take place at:

- Sunset Building: On the second Thursday of every other month, we are at the Kansas Area Agency on Aging, at its offices in the Johnson County facility, 11811 S. Sunset Drive, Olathe, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Call 913-715-8860 for an appointment.
- Roeland Park Community Center: On the second Thursday of every other month, we are at the community center, 4850 Rosewood Drive, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Call 913-826-3160 for an appointment.
- Matt Ross Community Center: On the third Wednesday of every month, we are at the community center, 8101 Marty St., Overland Park, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Call 913-826-2830 for an appointment.

During site visit meetings, we discuss their legal concerns, including advice on estate planning and avoiding probate along with preparation of simple estate planning documents, such as wills, a living will, a durable power of attorney for healthcare and financial purposes and a transfer on death deed.

We also discuss general legal issues involving adult abuse, healthcare, Social Security, Medicare, Medicaid, collections, guardianships and conservatorships, landlord/tenant disputes, simple real estate matters, bankruptcies and IRS issues.

Seniors can also apply for legal assistance either by phone (1-800-723-6953) at the KLS Central Intake office or by completing a KLS Application Online on the KLS website.

Thomas L. Lasley, an attorney for Kansas Legal Services, has more than 40 years of experience in the areas of elder law and estate planning.

Program helps in managing finances

By Marty Johannes

Your ability to manage your money has a direct impact on your ability to build and live the life you want. It starts with budgeting and getting out of debt, with the end goal of saving and investing so that your assets can grow.

Thanks to a partnership that Johnson County Library formed with a retired business executive, you can learn more about and get one-on-one assistance with managing your money from an expert – free of charge.

Emerson Hartzler has had a distinguished career. He served as director of the Management Consulting Division for the Kansas City office of Touche Ross, vice president of New Product Development for Retirement Centers of America and executive director of Cardiovascular Consultants.

When Hartzler “retired” in 2007, he pursued a second career as a pro bono personal financial advisor. He assumed the role of director of Pro Bono Services for Triune Financial partners until 2015. He continues to maintain an independent pro bono financial practice. Since 2007, Hartzler has served more than 350 individuals and families in the community, doing all his work without charge. Much of his work with clients involves helping them to plan and manage their income and expenses on a monthly basis, so that over time they can achieve financial success.

Several years ago, Hartzler approached Johnson County Library about presenting using the free budgeting website Mint.com, with individual follow-up for interested attendees.

Working with the library’s career and finance librarian, he developed and presented the online program “21st Century Budgeting with Mint.com” to discuss the principles of financial success and the importance of tracking personal income and expenses.

Interested attendees had the opportunity to schedule one-on-one follow-up appointments with Hartzler to help them establish and maintain an online budget using the website. One of the attendees who followed up with him shared that, “Having a budget in mint.com has given me a better sense of control over my money and peace of mind about my current and future finances.”

Hartzler also developed “Exposing the Myths of Retirement Investing,” a three-part program on understanding the stock market, taming the emotions that hurt investing and withdrawing funds during retirement.

Recordings of both programs, along with several other Johnson County Library virtual finance seminars, can be viewed via the Online Programs Archive at jocolibrary.org/personal-finance.

On Oct. 28, Hartzler will present “Improve Your Financial Score,” a virtual seminar on how to track and build personal financial security. As with the Mint.com program, attendees will have the opportunity to schedule a one-on-one appointment with him to set up a budget and start improving their financial health.

To register for this program and to see a full listing of all the library’s career and finance programs being offered this fall, visit jocolibrary.org/events.

Identity theft is a problem facing millions of Americans every year, and while online identity theft is increasing, thieves aren’t just looking for your information online.

Sergeant Robert Huff works for the Johnson County Sheriff’s Office and has been working identity theft cases in law enforcement for 19 years.

“Thieves will go to any measure to get your information,” Huff said, adding this includes going through your mailbox or digging in your trash.

“You never know who’s going to go through your stuff, so you want to shred everything you can. Anything that has a paper trail of any passwords, any account numbers, your name, your date of birth, your social – anything. You want to make sure you shred those documents instead of just throwing them in the trash.”

According to Huff, individuals and families should own a personal shredder to ensure private information does not end up in the wrong hands. However, for businesses and families that handle a large volume of documents, finding a secure shredding service can make all the difference.

Johnson County Developmental Supports (JCDS) is an organization within county government that provides services to individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities. Many services provided center on creating opportunities for the individuals to work and earn a paycheck, either through competitive employment or onsite employment.

One such opportunity is document destruction, which is a secure and confidential shredding service operating at the Elmore Center in Lenexa.

The program began in 2010 after a donation from William T. Kemper Foundation to Friends of JCDS was used to purchase the equipment. The program grew from there and now accepts residential walk-ins and does business pickups. They use assistive technology to help individuals with limited mobility work.

About 10 people who receive services from JCDS work in document destruction each year. As the program grows, more individuals are joining the team.

Tracy Smith is the facilitator and says the benefits of document destruction extend beyond preventing identity theft.

“It’s giving individuals [with disabilities] an opportunity to work who more likely than not wouldn’t be able to,” she said. “It’s great that we can be another resource for people to find a place to shred.”

The shredded paper is recycled and used to build notebooks, fire logs and other assorted items. You can learn more, and request a price quote, online at docdestruction.jcds.org.

EMFVs want kitchen clutter

By Crystal Futrell

Do you have more kitchen gadgets than you know what to do with?
Are you an empty nester but still have place settings that now hold dust more often than homecooked meals?
Well, we have an opportunity for you!
The Johnson County Extension Master Food Volunteers (EMFV) are starting a project called “Kitchen Restore” as part of Johnson County Extension’s JoCo E.A.T.S. initiative. It is a community resource and website listing healthy recipes that are easy to make and taste-test-approved. The E.A.T.S. stands for Easy Affordable Tasty Solutions.

For more than a century, Extension has worked under the mission of being a resource to help people improve their lives. It’s the familiar concept that it’s better to teach someone to fish rather than just give them a fish to eat. Well, it’s hard to fish if you don’t have a fishing pole. And, that’s what the JoCo E.A.T.S. Kitchen Restore Project is all about.

We are asking for donations of gently used (or new) kitchen tools and dinnerware. Our EMFVs will sort, clean, and organize the items into kits that will be donated to community organizations that can identify individuals and families who need them.

The kits will include items for measuring, cutting, mixing, cooking and eating. An estimated value for each kit is between $100 and $120. Extension will also accept tax-deductible financial donations of any amount (checks made payable to Johnson County Extension Education Foundation) to purchase items needed to supplement the kits.

Please bring your donations to our Johnson County Extension Office, 11811 S. Sunset Drive, Olathe. We will accept any kitchen item but mostly need: dinner plates, cups, knives, spoons, forks, serrated knives, plastic cutting boards, skillets, large mixing spoons, rubber spatulas, measuring spoons, dry measuring cups, liquid measuring cups, sheet trays, vegetable peelers, mixing bowls, fine mesh sieves, saucepans, can openers, flipping spatulas, meat thermometers and pot holders.

If you have questions about our JoCo E.A.T.S. Kitchen Restore Project, or if you are a community organization and would like to partner with Extension to facilitate this project, please contact me by email at Crystal.Futrell@jocogov.org or call 913-715-7000.

Crystal Futrell is the health and food safety agent at the Johnson County K-State Research and Extension Office.
This fall, Johnson County Park and Recreation District’s 50 Plus Travel is ready to breathe in the fall air and take in the natural sites of area walking trails and parks.

50 Plus offers two types of walking programs so various levels of nature lovers can enjoy the great outdoors.

Find your favorite trails all over the region, with Adventure Walks. After taking an hour-long hike on trails ranging from “easy” to “moderate”, participants can enjoy lunch with the group at an area restaurant.

For those looking to have a more leisurely stroll close to home, Wednesday Walks may be the perfect start to the morning. Make friends or bring some along while exploring the great outdoors on paved trails. After, stop and enjoy a sweet treat on the way back to Antioch Park in Merriam.

Transportation to the trails for all walks is provided by 50 Plus. Food purchases are at the expense of the traveler for all walking trips.

Upcoming walks (all start at 8 a.m.) include:

- Wednesday Walk: Carl L. Chinnery Nature Trail
  Unity Village in Jackson County, Missouri
  Wednesday, Sept. 8
  1-6 hour outing
  $21 residents/$23 nonresidents.

- Adventure Walk: Tallgrass Prairie National Preserve
